COL. SAM PARKER AND 'JIM' FURNISH NEWSPAPER STORIES

Merry Romances of the Sea
Result from Steamship
Voyages

Col. Sam Parker and "Jim" Parker figure prominently in gay stories of the sea that arrived here today on the Wilhelmina, said stories being from the San Francisco papers, which delight in printing merry romances about Honolulu folks and steamship voyages. Says the Chronicle of November 12:

"With tales of merriment and fun-making that made the voyage one round of happy, care-free enjoyment, the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia arrived yesterday from the Orient and Honolulu. The passengers were still talking about the series of terpsichorean diversions, which ended the last night of the trip with a 'hula party' given by Jim Parker, the young son of Colonel Sam Parker, who displayed the maze of the native island dance to the delight of the travelers."

The final dance held on deck, however, was not a portion of the morsel of gossip discussed by those on board. How Charles Campbell Jr. connected with the embassy of Tokio, made love to all the girls and was the gallant of the ship was also repeated.

Among the prominent society people on the Mongolia were Miss Marguerite Butters, Miss Carmen Ghirardelli, Miss Eileen Schweizer and Mrs. A. E. Sims of this city. Miss Jane Hoge of Fresno, and they all took a prominent part in the festivities, but each one disclaimed having given the young diplomatic attache any cause for a broken heart, although they admitted that he was a very nice chap and had been very attractive.

The handsome young man's gallantry kept him quite busy denying rumors circulated by his fellow passengers that an engagement between one of the girls had been the outcome of many strolls along the decks under the stars.

"Why, it's a practical joke they're putting up on me," pleaded Campbell when asked about the rumor, and the girls, who were near by, laughed merrily, as if to prove what he said was correct.

With dreamy music supplied by the Mongolia's "Philharmonic orchestra, there had been no damper against wooing the goddesses terpichore either in the steps of the ballroom waltz or through the more popular medium of the rag.

The "hop" of Monday night was put down as the star entertainment of the trip. Young Parker danced the "hula" for half an hour by the ship's clock, it was said, and "Aloha Oe" was not sung until after eight bells, when all's well.

The Examiner of November 20 prints this:

When Colonel Sam Parker boarded the liner Mongolia at Honolulu a week ago enroute to San Francisco he was surrounded by a million little "gossips."

The colonel had not yet recovered from his surprise upon the night of the election, when he learned that the voters of the Island port had refused to endorse him for the position of mayor.

The look of woe upon the countenance of the gallant war hero resulted in some of the prettiest young women on the steamer coming to the front and attempting to cheer him. The colonel refused to come out of his group, and sneaked off to a lonely corner of the upper deck and spent his time in weaving a net.

Now the making of a net was resorted to by Parker many years ago as an antidote against the "blues." The colonel boasts about his net weaving dexterity.

When the dinner gong sounded the colonel hastened away to the half-beds he had engaged to put his net away until the spirit moved him to net some more. Happening to try the knob of the door communicating with the other half of the suite the colonel found it open, so the precious netting was secreted in the other room.

Shortly afterward one of the steward boys came along and found the half-completed net in the otherwise vacant room and a report was made to the purser. As a result of which Colonel Parker was tendered a bill the next day for $100.

"I have paid my bill one time," stormed the colonel. "What do you mean by asking me to pay another $100?"

"Why, colonel," explained the official, "we find that you are now using

These results have been extremely good. I am of the opinion that when it comes to health, nothing can build up the strength, to stimulate the bodily functions, and to improve the circulation of the blood."

The King of Spain's

He who is very nervous and asthmatic, has been greatly benefited by the prolonged use
